Not illustrated. 1901 Excerpt: .together in the form of lumps or granules, and acting simultaneously when put in suitable media, giving rise to small amounts of alcohol and lactic acid. Closely related to the alcoholic fermentation is the acetic, or the oxidation of alcohol to acetic acid by bacteria, as in the process of vinegar-making. This process has been known and employed for a long time, but still it is only comparatively recently that accurate knowledge has been obtained as to the organisms involved, and even now many suppose that the process is a case of simple chemical oxidation Through the investigations of Hansen, and more recently of Lafar and Hehneberg, it has been shown that there is a group or race of bacteria which will develop most rapidly in dilute alcoholic solutions, and if the temperature be favorable, will oxidize them to acetic acid and water, with sometimes the...
